DUE TO PREVENTIVE MEDICINE

Life of Human Beings Prolonged and the Ravages of Infectious Diseases Checked.

During the last 50 years preventive medicine has done far more to alleviate suffering and to prolong life than the average man is aware. It is estimated that during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the death rate throughout the civilized world ranged from 50 to perhaps 80 per 1,000. Today in London, Berlin and New York the average lies between 17 and 19. This great decrease in yearly mortality is due principally to protection from infectious diseases now afforded to children during the first five years of life. In New York city there has been a reduction since 1873 of over 50 per cent. in the death rate of the infantile portion of the population. It is obvious that the probable lifetime has increased coincidentally with the prevention of diseases to which children of tender years are especially susceptible. Dr. Hermann M. Biggs of the New York city health department has estimated that "the expectation of life at birth in this city in 1866 was only a little more than 25 years, while in 1903, calculated on the death rate for that year, it had almost doubled, and equaled about forty-two years." Such statistics as these are certainly striking commentaries on the advance and triumph of medical research; for it is true beyond cavil that this progress has been dependent primarily upon the knowledge gained in the laboratories, the harvest of persistent investigation.—Dr. John C. Torrey, in Harper's.

There is no bit of wisdom which prospective brides and grooms more profitably may take to heart than that while quarrels between lovers who are still a courtship may successfully be patched up as good, even better than new, provided always that neither of the lovers mean malice, and also that both are affectionate and forgiving of disposition, the genuine matrimonial family row rarely is followed by kisses, unless there has been bitter burning which sears, and acrid bitterness of spirit which long endures under the sweet of reconciliation.

A tempest of tears and temper not often is the forerunner of clear-shining after rain. On the contrary, it by far is more likely to stir up lasting dissension and anger.

How can it be possible that love of any sort can be made more precious by disputing and wrangling, by contradiction and continual disagreeing? During the days of courtship it is possible that it may pass for playful teasing, when hearts are soft and heads even softer; but after marriage there is danger that each will be ready to assert his or her rights, and each be less willing to yield to the other.

Lovers' quarrels usually are either ebullitions of jealousy, mostly due to selfishness, or else they come from what somebody has called "the leakage of bad temper," a most undesirable quality for either husband or wife. If lovers cannot avoid quarrels before marriage there is small hope that they will be able to eschew them afterward.

BEWARE OF DISPUTE

END OF QUARREL ALWAYS HARD TO FORESEE.

King Solomon's Advice to "Leave Off Contention Before It Is Meddled With" Worth Heeding and Remembering.

"Avoid the beginning of quarrels." No better advice could be given to a newly-wedded couple. King Solomon, with all his wisdom, never spoke truer words than that "the beginning of strife is like the letting out of water; therefore leave off contention before it is meddled with." Most quarrels, conjugal or otherwise, begin with trifles, and "Behold how great a fire a little matter kindleth." Avoid disputes. "It is the first step which counts," for which sound reason, do not take it!

An old man, who, as a criminal lawyer of many years' standing, had wide and deep acquaintance with human nature, used to tell his daughters: "Make up your minds to the fact that your husbands are but men, although they are gentlemen, and take heed how you provoke them to anger. It takes two to make a quarrel; never be one of the two and remember that your dignity best is preserved by silence when you are provoked."

"Never forget that you take your husband for better, for worse, and if, which heaven forbid, worse comes, at least bear it like a Christian gentleman. You will find the recipe in Matthew 5, beginning at verse 29."

There is no bit of wisdom which prospective brides and grooms more profitably may take to heart than that while quarrels between lovers who are still a courtship may successfully be patched up as good, even better than new, provided always that neither of the lovers mean malice, and also that both are affectionate and forgiving of disposition, the genuine matrimonial family row rarely is followed by kisses, unless there has been bitter burning which sears, and acrid bitterness of spirit which long endures under the sweet of reconciliation.

FIRE IN TACOMA.

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 1.—The malt house of the Pacific Brewing and Maltting company, in the east end of the city, a mile from the malt brewing plant was burned today. The loss will be about $75,000, with insurance.

TORNADO IN TEXAS.

Jacksonville, Texas, Sept. 1.—Dialville, a small town on the Cottonbelt railroad eight miles from here, was devastated by a tornado last night. Several of the inhabitants were injured.

NOTICE OF INTENTION.

Notice is hereby given by the city council of Ogden City, Utah, of the intention of such council to make the following improvements, to-wit:

To open Hudson Avenue through Block twenty-five (25), Plat "A", Ogden City Survey, sixty (60) feet wide through the center of said Block twenty-five (25), the whole distance from 24th to 25th Streets, said avenue to be thirty (30) feet in width on either and both sides of the center line of said Block.

The estimated cost of said improvements is $100,000.

The district affected by said improvements is the whole of said Hudson Avenue to be opened and a strip of land forty-eight (48) feet in width on either and both sides of said Avenue when opened as proposed and abutting thereon.

For the payment of the costs and expenses of making said improvements the city council intends to levy and collect special and local taxes upon
